Now, let's talk about another topic, information technology and data privacy.

Information and communication technologies are becoming more and more prominent in our private and professional lives. It is now possible to link computers, telephones, televisions, video recorders and communication satellites. These so-called "information super-highways" provide access to the information society. So, for example, you can get in contact with different people, different service suppliers, etc. all over the world from your computer, your television or your phone.

Q.44. By using a communication network such as Internet from your computer, teletext from your television, etc., you can get access to different services.

For each of the services I read out, could you please tell me if it interests you, or not ?

Now, let's talk about another topic, information technology and data privacy.

Information and communication technologies are becoming more and more prominent in our private and professional lives. It is now possible to link computers, telephones, televisions, video recorders and communication satellites. These so-called "information super-highways" provide access to the information society. So, for example, you can get in contact with different people, different service suppliers, etc. all over the world from your computer, your television or your phone.

Q.44. By using a communication network such as Internet from your computer, teletext from your television, etc., you can get access to different services.

For each of the services I read out, could you please tell me if it interests you, or not ?

- Q.50. In the European Union, there are laws which aim to protect your private life and to set rules about the use of information about you. These laws, for instance, make it compulsory to have your agreement to use the information and to give you the right to oppose some uses that you do not want, or do not want anymore. Before today, had you heard about these laws, or not ?
